Adjustment

The body protector should be as tight to the body as possible. Fasten the protector and adjust the fit using the Velcro straps on each side. The panels should be so tight that there is no air between the front and back of the protector.

The lower edge of the front part should be at least 25 mm below the end of the chest. The upper edge of the front should reach the upper edge of the sternum (sternum). The body protector should not touch or cover any part of the throat.

If the body protector doesn't fit, despite the instructions being followed, another size should be tested.
